

ABSTRACT

The study has been carried out to analyze the interaction of the RF cavity with beam and without beam. The basic idea of this research problem is that beam gets maximum power while passing through RF cavity and reflected voltage is minimized in order to avoid power losses. To deal with this problem analytical solution is provided in this thesis work and by using that analytical solutions, simulation results has been plotted by using MATLAB.