

Abstract

We investigate non-relativistic Compton scattering by muon which is bound with the nucleus in the intense laser field. We find the non-linear rate and cross-section using Keldysh-type approximation. We study the maximum probability of Compton scattering when the energy of the laser is greater than the bound state and the particle is considered a free particle.