

ABSTRACT

Leadership has become the most dominant phenomenon of the world. It is important for every activity of human beings. It is necessary element in social fabric of society. It becomes significant feature of Pakistan's politics. Pakistan is still facing crises of leadership since 1947.

Punjab is a great province of Pakistan and it has very strong political history but the political system and matters could not be run smoothly and properly due to lack of capable and competent leadership. It is interesting to note that they emerged out of wealth, baradaries and landed aristocracy. This has put them in a different behavioral mould. Their attitude and thinking have been different from the society. Over the years, they have been dominating the politics of the country. The negatively curved development, they have become victim of the process and have emerged a class without values, principles and ethos. They lie on little things, are non serious on crucial issues. For them politics is a maid to serve their interest. Leadership on these bases has failed to play a positive role in the development of the Pakistani society in general and Punjab in particular.

The study of leadership in Punjab Assembly is of empirical nature. The main objectives of this study is therefore, to provide the better vision of leadership which has emerged during 2002 elections on the basis of education, It has been hoped that Graduate Assembly will provide some empirically based answers to the questions. Nothing tangible has been found. Even though they are trying to come up to that level where they can overcome the crises of the leadership. The present study not only highlight the qualities of leadership in Punjab Assembly but also gave some suggestions on how to groom them and train this leadership in such a way where they can be able to produce effective leadership.
